

This October (2015) will be the one year anniversary of adopting "Bron" into our home. He didn't have a very nice background when we first adopted him, he has scars and still shows signs of fright- but has made a huge transition into a safe and loving new life with us. He loves to walk, run, jump, chew his bones, and he loves getting new toys!! He goes on many walks, and gets a lot of play time. He was such a great addition to our home, and look forward to the years ahead of learning more about his crazy personality.
