

We adopted Lucy from the shelter when she was around 3 months old. The girls that work there I'm sure remember her.. We were told she was dumped and left on a highway somewhere. She ended up getting puppy strangles which caused her to lose the fur on her body and her face. She needed to be on medication for a long time and have her face washed with special soap every day. We fell in love with this puppy the moment we seen her. She's almost 10 now and has not had any medication in years and is very healthy, she got most of her fur back except on her nose and she lost the glands that keep her nose wet.. so we still wash her face to make her feel better. We now live out at ranger lake.. She has quite the life of lounging and swimming and chasing squirrels with her brothers. It's been such a joy watching her from a small scared puppy to know what it's like to play and be healthy. We love our big newfoundlander Lucy diamond . And she gets many pampered days at pet smart ☺
