

We adopted Luna (black), previously named Chili on February 18, 2016 and Alastor (white), previously named Ziggy on June 20, 2018.

When we adopted Luna she quickly got settled in, it wasn't long before she's was climbing the shower and living room curtains! She loved to lounge in the window and people watch. Unfortunately it wasn't long after we adopted her she developed asthma. We brought her to our vet and they quickly got her on medication and got it under control. It gradually got better and as the months went on we noticed she wasn't having as many coughing fits. Recently she hasn't been having any and we were able to stop giving the medication! We are thinking since we bought a house and not living in an apartment anymore the air quality is better and we can leave the windows cracked open so she can get some fresh air! :)

At first we weren't sure how Luna would adjust to having a new baby brother as she had been around family members cats and didn't particularly enjoy their company, but it wasn't long before we caught them cuddling and grooming each other!

Alastor is the sweetest boy we've ever met! Everyone who meets him falls in love. He gets along great with both our dogs and Luna! You can count on him waking you up at 545 every morning for breakfast! He makes sure we don't forget to feed him.

We are so grateful for both Luna and Alastor and we can't wait to add another furry friend in the future! Thank you so much for everything we couldn't imagine our lives without them!
