

Hello! I thought you'd like to see a bit of an update on Rocky!

He's been an absolute delight for us, he fits in so perfectly we feel as though we've had him for years. He's a total mama's boy and sleeps next to me every night. We snuggle all the time 🥰 He's smart, spunky, and has a great sense of humor. He's definitely not afraid to speak his mind and is hilariously vocal. He loves his walks and breakfast is his favourite time of day. He's on a diet though, he has a little pudgy that we're gonna work on.

He did end up diagnosed with epilepsy, and is now on medication for the rest of his life. We have a white board that we use to keep track of when we give him his pill every morning and night. Every so often a seizure sneaks through, but he pulls through every time and we keep close track of them.

Despite what was told, Rocky is amazing with children. He's always up for pets and has never shown signs of aggression towards anyone that has come up to pet him. He gets along with other dogs too, but mostly prefers to stick with me rather than join in play. The only person he shows any sort of sass towards is his papa, he hates when my husband gets my attention instead of him! But he always knows to keep the grumbles to a playful minimum. Seagulls and squirrels beware, though!

I hope you enjoyed the update. Rocky is in the best situation possible and is utterly spoiled with the best we can give him. Adopting a senior dog is such a wonderful experience. We're nap buddies for life!

He was also the best man at our wedding!
